JUSTICE FOR IMMIGRANTS
a journey of hope

From heaven one beautiful morning the Guadalupana came down to Tepeyac.
She joined her hands in prayer and her face and her features were those of the native peoples.

Her arrival filled with joy, with light and harmony, all of Anahuac.

Juan Diego came walking by the mountain and then came close upon hearing song.

To Juan Diego the Virgin said: This hill I choose to make my altar.

And in Juan Diego's cloak among painted roses she chose to leave her beloved image.
